

"Respect Of All"

Editor of the Daily News:

Congratulations to the high school students of Senior, Page and Curry High who participated in the "Youth Speaks" workshop on Feb. 20. Any adult who was privileged to hear their mature discussions was indeed impressed with the fact that something important was started.

It is hoped that they will not let this one workshop be the end of such activity. This type of freedom of thought and open discussion is democracy in its essence. Their young minds, unhampered by the strings of personal responsibility, are capable of objective thinking that is difficult for the adults of the community.

Perhaps they don't realize the effects that a truly representative voice of youth can have on our community. The possibilities of their accomplishments are unlimited; the influence on their parents and other adults cannot be measured. They are not too young to recognize their responsibility to make the future of the world what they want it to be.

If the enthusiastic students who participated in the program will encourage others to join them in expressing their ideas in a concrete form, they surely will demand the attention and respect of all.
