

"Silliest Argument"

Editor of the Daily News:

When I saw your editorial, "What Fools We Mortals Be," I thought perhaps you had seen the light, but after reading this I saw that the blame was placed on stores for not allowing a few students to be served. Of all the arguments I have heard this is the silliest.

This scheme has been hatching for a good while and is sanctioned by college teachers, and no doubt inspired by N.A.A.C.P.

I just wonder when these students decided they had no place to eat, and why they were not in classes. You have sown the wind and are reaping the whirlwind. The daily papers of this state cannot put blame on others for they and do-gooders are responsible.

I notice a teen-ager writing to the Daily News saying he was confused. No wonder he is confused when so many are trying to lead the youth astray.

One of the best letters I have read is by Mrs. Marian S. Patterson of Greensboro.

People are to be congratulated who have the courage to stand up for what is right and not follow along with the crowd.
