

Install Seatettes

Editor of the Daily News:

This may be a solution to the current problem in Greensboro. May I suggest this idea for the luncheon counter problem at the Woolworth and Kress Stores.

The stores may wish to install what may be called a seatette which would be a private partition between each seat at the counter. The partition could be cut in a sloping shape so that if friends were together they would merely lean forward to converse.

It is true that an idea similar to this one, concerning integrated conditions in transportation, etc., has been successful without disagreement for the past few years.

Please give this some real thought.
